Draft amendments to 1988 Load Lines Protocol and IGF Code on the use of watertight doors is expected to be adopted at this session.

Few discussion to be address is whether the requirements only applicable to new ships or also applicable to existing ships.

Although some comments were received as to the reason the amendments were being made the first time was only to achieve or remove inconsistencies on the application of the regulation in difference instruments and not to add any more requirements.

MEASURES TO IMPROVE DOMESTIC FERRY SAFETY

In this meeting agenda, whereas previous session have communicated the model regulation for domestic ferry safety, it is realized that the final instrument lies on the decision of member states.

It is also realize that few member states have current legislation / national law addressing the same issues, therefore a technical cooperation might improve the safety of domestic ferry. One of stakeholders also recommends working group to further align the model regulation with the current situation to develop the concept much further.
